INTRODUCTION

BARCELONA

Barcelona is the economic, cultural and administrative capital of Catalonia and one of Spain's 17 regions. Catalonia is located in the north-east of the Iberian Peninsula and is home to seven and a half million people, of whom nearly two thirds live in the metropolitan area of Barcelona.

Barcelona is on the shores of the Mediterranean Sea and a couple of hours drive from France. It is also well connected to major Spanish and European cities through excellent air, rail and road links.

It is a very lively and densely populated city, where roughly 1.6 million people inhabit its 100 square kilometres of land. However, the real Barcelona is a much larger metropolitan area composed of nearly 200 municipalities with five million residents. The Barcelona metropolitan area is characterised by its demographically diverse and socially cohesive population and the continuity of its urban landscape: one can leave Barcelona and enter a different municipality without even noticing it just by crossing a street.

Its residents say that it is a dynamic, cosmopolitan city of contrasts, a city bounded by the sea and the mountains where wide avenues and modern skyscrapers coexist with narrow medieval streets and contemporary urban life is enriched by its fascinating history.

Other hallmarks of the city are its strong entrepreneurial culture based on rigour, future vision, ambition, capacity for innovation and openness to the world. It has an economy with a long commercial and industrial tradition which is attractive for business development, with research at the forefront and creativity that crosses frontiers.

The Mediterranean way of life, bustling streets and pleasant weather of Barcelona attract skilled professionals, entrepreneurs, researchers and students from around the world.

CATALAN CULTURE

La Rambla

Catalan society has a long tradition of autonomy and cultural uniqueness. In Spain, the Catalan people are known for their motivation and commitment to work, values rooted in a strong mercantile tradition. They can also be perceived as serious and reserved, but this should never be interpreted as unfriendliness but rather a clearer division between professional and personal relationships. Catalans, serious as they are in business affairs, are at their most extroverted and lively when surrounded by family and friends. Catalans are Spanish in their vitality and zest for life, and for all the importance they place on hard work, they always put social and family life first. With just the right amount of respect and amiability, you will have no trouble at all finding pleasant colleagues, good neighbours and even lifelong friends among Barcelona's locals.

Barcelona is a multilingual city with two official languages. Here as in the rest of Catalonia, Spanish shares co-official status with Catalan, the language of Catalonia. The Catalan language is a cherished, indispensable part of Catalan identity and culture, and it will surely play an important role in your everyday life in Barcelona.

Most locals, especially those living in urban areas such as Barcelona, can be considered balanced bilinguals. This means that they can switch between Catalan and Spanish with little to no effort. In fact, many Catalans instinctively speak to foreigners in Spanish. In addition, a part of Barcelona's population is composed of immigrants or descendants of immigrants from other parts of Spain who consider Spanish their mother tongue and home language. Spanish is widely used in Barcelona, in the home, in the street and in the media, and if you speak the language you can communicate with the locals as soon as you arrive.

The importance of the Catalan language in all areas of Catalan life is undeniable. A large number of Catalan families exclusively speak Catalan in the home and consider it their language of identity. Catalan is the language of instruction in schools in Catalonia, where Spanish and a foreign language, usually English, are also taught. In the region's universities, although teaching is conducted in both Spanish and Catalan, the latter is adopted as institutional language and is thus used in administrative affairs. Local government bodies and institutions also conduct business in Catalan. In Barcelona and the rest of Catalonia, commercial signage is mostly in Catalan, and street, town and city names are always in this language. For anyone planning to live in Barcelona, learning at least a little Catalan is highly recommended.

The good news is that Catalan, like Spanish, is a Romance language. Given the close proximity between these related languages, if you speak Spanish (or French or Italian or any other language in the family) you are already one step ahead in learning Catalan. Apart from this, the Catalan government and many of its universities and institutions offer free introductory courses as well as Internet learning resources. When you get to Barcelona or even before you arrive, there are a number of ways for you to learn Catalan.

The presence of a regional language is just another feature that makes the cultural tapestry of Barcelona richer and more colourful. Knowledge of Catalan, though by no means required, will make your integration into Catalan society easier. It can also open new doors in your professional, business, social and personal life, enrich your living experience in Barcelona, and enable you to enjoy a rich, diverse cultural and leisure offering that reflects the city's two-thousand-year old history.

PRE-ARRIVAL INFORMATION

Things you need to know before coming to Barcelona

APPLYING FOR A VISA AND RESIDENCE PERMIT

EU, EUROPEAN ECONOMIC AREA AND SWISS NATIONALS

➔ EU, European Economic Area and Swiss nationals

Nationals of European Union (EU) countries and Iceland, Norway, Liechtenstein and Switzerland do not need a visa to enter Spain, only a passport or an official valid identity card (ID).

All EU nationals planning to reside in Spain for a continuous period of more than three months are required to obtain an EU Citizen Register Certificate (Certificat del Registre de Ciutadà de la Unió Europea). You have to apply within three months of entry into Spain, and you will immediately be given a registration certificate stating your name, nationality and address, your Foreigner Identity Number (NIE - Número d'identificació d'estranger) and the date of registration. The NIE is a unique identification number assigned to all foreigners living in Spain. It is required for filing taxes and all other transactions with the state, as well as for buying property, establishing a business, opening a Spanish bank account, setting up a mobile phone contract, etc.

To do this, you first need to ask for an appointment and then go to the police station (comisaria) for your place of residence. In Barcelona this is the police station at Rambla Guipúzcoa 74.

➔ Living and working in Spain

Nationals of countries outside the European Union, the European Economic Area or Switzerland who wish to remain in Spain for more than 3 months and/or work there must apply for a permit.

Spain issues different kinds of residence and work permits depending on the kind of work the foreign national is intending to do in the country.

You can view the list of permits and their procedures at → www.extranjeros.empleo.gob.es

Living and working in Spain as a salaried employee

The usual procedure for living and working in Spain as a salaried employee (e.g. a worker hired by a Spanish company) is as follows:

- The Spanish company applies for a residence and salaried work permit to hire the non-EU national.
- Once the permit is issued, the non-EU national has to apply for a visa to enter Spain in the Spanish consulate where they live.
- Once they have this visa and are in Spain, they have to apply for a Foreigner Identification Card at the police station nearest their home.

There are some variations in the general procedures to speed up and/or simplify the paperwork depending on the size and profile of the Spanish company seeking to hire the non-EU national and the qualifications and job they are to take.

EU BLUE CARD

This is a card for highly skilled non-EU nationals who are hired for a job which requires a higher education qualification. The initial permit is for 1 year and can be renewed. 18 months after being granted with the EU Blue Card the person can move freely throughout the territory of the European Union.

Living and working in Spain as a freelancer

The usual procedure for living and working in Spain as a self-employed worker (such as an entrepreneur/businessperson) is as follows:

- The non-EU national applies for a residence and self-employed work permit in the Spanish consulate where they live.
- Once the permit is issued, the non-EU national has to apply for a visa to enter Spain in the same consulate.
- Once they have this visa and are in Spain, they have to apply for a Foreigner Identification Card at the police station nearest their home.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR STARTING A BUSINESS ACTIVITY (ACT 14/2013, OF 27 SEPTEMBER, ON SUPPORT FOR ENTREPRENEURS AND THEIR INTERNATIONALISATION)

Foreigners may apply for a visa to enter and stay in Spain for a period of 1 year for the sole or primary purpose of carrying out the preparatory procedures for performing an entrepreneurial activity. Subsequently they are also eligible to apply for a residence permit for entrepreneurs without having to apply for a visa and with no prior residence requirement, provided that they can prove they have actually started the business.

Investors (NEW: Act 14/2013, of 27 September, on support for entrepreneurs and their internationalisation)

RESIDENCE VISA FOR INVESTORS

Non-resident foreigners wishing to enter Spain in order to make a significant capital investment may apply for a stay visa. The award of a residence visa allows them to live in Spain for at least 1 year.

Significant capital investments are as follows:

- Initial investments equal to or greater than €2 million in Spanish government debt securities, or equal to or higher than €1 million in stocks or shares of Spanish companies, or bank deposits in Spanish financial institutions.
- Acquisitions of property in Spain with an investment equal to or greater than €500,000 for each investor visa applicant.
- Business projects that are to be carried out in Spain and are considered in the public interest for at least one of the following reasons:
 - Job creation
 - Investment with a significant socio-economic impact in the geographical area in which the activity is to be performed
 - A significant contribution to scientific and/or technological innovation
- Investments made by legal entities domiciled in a territory that is not considered a tax haven, when the investor visa applicant directly or indirectly holds the majority of the voting rights and can appoint or remove most members of the board.

RESIDENCE PERMIT FOR INVESTORS

Foreign investors wishing to reside in Spain for a period exceeding 1 year may apply for a residence permit for investors.

The initial permit will last for two years. After this period they may apply to renew the permit for another two years.

In addition to the general requirements for residency in Spain, the investor must meet the following:

- Have a valid residence visa for investors in force or be within the 90 calendar days after it has expired.
- Have travelled to Spain at least once during the period when they are allowed to reside there.

The details and requirements for residency under Act 14/2013 are in Regulations and Case Law at → www.extranjeros.empleo.gob.es

CITY COUNCIL REGISTRATION

Certificat d'empadronament means registering with your city or town's official record of residents (Padró Municipal d'Habitants). All residents in Spain are required by law to register with their city council or town council. The certificat d'empadronament is proof of this registration. You can apply for your empadronament as an individual or as a family.

You can do this in person at the Citizen's Assistance Office (Oficina d'Atenció Ciutadana) of Barcelona City Council (or the Citizen's Assistance Office of your district if you speak Catalan or Spanish) or online.

You need to present a valid passport (one for each member of the family) and your original rental contract. The process is quite straightforward, and you will get your certificate on the spot.

Getting your City Council registration is important because it is the way to verify or accredit your residence in Spain, and it is needed for administrative procedures such as applying for a residence card, applying for a local health card, getting married, enrolling your children in local schools, etc.

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER (NÚMERO D'AFILIACIÓ A LA SEGURETAT SOCIAL)

In order to contribute to the Spanish Social Security system and access the public health system, you need to have a Social Security number. Your Social Security contributions cover sickness and maternity benefits, old-age pensions, industrial-injury compensation, invalidity and death benefits.

Employers take care of Social Security procedures on behalf of their salaried employees. Self-employed individuals need to apply for their Social Security number in person at their nearest Social Security office (Administració de la Seguretat Social).

MONEY AND BANKING

CURRENCY

The euro is Spain's official currency since 1 January 2002. One euro is equivalent to 166,386 of the former currency, the peseta. 500 pesetas is around €3 and 1,000 pesetas around €6.

OPENING A BANK ACCOUNT

Spanish banks offer two types of bank accounts to international clients: resident and non-resident accounts. The difference is that the bank does not withhold a percentage of the interest earned in non-resident accounts, while fees are usually lower for resident accounts. The bank generally does a check of your non-resident status every six months. If you do become a resident after opening the account, you must notify the bank and give them a copy of your residence card.

To open a non-resident bank account, just go to the bank of your choice with your passport.

To open a resident account, simply go to the bank with your Spanish NIE and they will open your account right then and there. The bank will provide you with a bankbook (llibreta), a debit card, or both.

You can open an account in euro or in a foreign currency. There is usually no minimum deposit for opening a bank account in euro, but there may be one for opening an account in another currency. There may be a fee for opening the account and a small annual charge for maintenance. There may also be service charges for certain transactions, so make sure to inquire about fees and check your bank statements carefully.

There are several banking options in Barcelona, from local banks to branches of major international institutions and large investment banks. It is a good idea to ask your bank in your home country about the possibility of opening an account with a corresponding branch in Barcelona if there is one. Some banks have English-speaking staff at specific branches to help foreigners. Many banks also offer excellent online banking services in different languages.

You can visit several banks or do research online to find out which institutions provide services that suit your needs best.

BANKING HOURS

Most banks are open from Monday to Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 2:00 or to 2:30 p.m. in the case of savings banks (caixes) which are also open on Thursday afternoons from 5:00 to 7:45 p.m. from October to May.

CREDIT CARDS

Major credit and debit cards are accepted in almost all shops, restaurants, hotels and many other services, including Metro ticket machines and parking machines. You can also use your credit or debit card to withdraw money from cash dispenser, which provide instructions in different languages.

PAYING BILLS

Cheques are rarely used in Spain—instead, a convenient way to pay recurring bills such as rent, electricity and telephone bills is through direct debit (domiciliació).

To have your bill payments deducted directly from your bank account, you must first authorise them with your bank. Just fill in the forms instructing your bank to pay these bills and inform them of your account details. The bank will advise you of the amount they have paid on your behalf and to whom.

ACCOMMODATION

SHORT-TERM ACCOMMODATION

Newcomers who wish to book short-term accommodation in Barcelona to allow themselves time to search for a more permanent home will find a wealth of options in the city. However, Barcelona's popularity as a destination for short breaks and the many international events regularly hosted by the city give it a hotel occupancy rate of 75-85%, one of the highest in Europe. It is therefore advisable that you arrange your short-term accommodation at least two to three months before your arrival, so you can have more choices and get cheaper rates.

Hotels

The robust growth in demand experienced by Barcelona's hotel sector has been met by numerous new hotel developments. The city now offers a wide range of hotels to suit all tastes and budgets, from five-star luxury properties to midrange accommodation.

The local market is mainly dominated by domestic hotel chains and independent hotels, although there is some presence from international operators. You can choose from large, full-service, globally branded hotels right through to smaller, cosier, individually-owned boutique hotels. There is a broad selection of hotels in the lively city centre and beachside areas, as well as in quieter residential zones.

➔ Budget hotels and guesthouses

This type of accommodation is called a pensió or hostal in Catalan. A hostal should not be confused with a hostel, which is a kind of communal accommodation offered mostly to young people, referred to as an alberg juvenil in Catalan. A hostal is very similar to a hotel, but is smaller and more informal. Hostals tend to be family-run businesses. They are not categorized by the 5-star hotel rating but instead have their own 3-star rating system. They provide quality accommodation at a much lower price, although they offer fewer facilities and services and generally lack Internet reservations or booking sites.

➔ Serviced and self-catered apartments

These are fully furnished and equipped apartments available for short-term or long-term stays. They usually provide cooking facilities and all the modern conveniences of home. Serviced apartments come with daily or weekly cleaning services, while in self-catered apartments such services are optional and are charged separately.

They range in size from one-room studios to 2-3 bedroom apartments. This type of accommodation is ideal for families and large groups. The main advantages of staying in an apartment are privacy, more space and the cost savings associated with cooking one's own meals.

To search for short-term accommodation in Barcelona go to the Plan Your Trip page of Barcelona's tourism website → www.bcn.cat/turisme

➔ Aparthotels

Aparthotels combine the flexibility of apartment living with hotel comforts. Like serviced and self-catered apartments, aparthotel suites feature en-suite bathrooms, fully fitted kitchens and living areas. But in addition to these internal facilities, they also offer typical hotel services such as restaurants and bars, concierge assistance, in-house maintenance and laundry services.

MEDIUM AND LONG-TERM ACCOMMODATION

Any stay in a rental property longer than six months is considered medium or long-term accommodation. Long-term accommodation is a stay of at least one year's duration.

A temporary contract is for six to eleven months and is renewable. This type of contract is normally used for holiday lettings and is more expensive. The new Residential Tenancies Act of June 2013 provides that the duration of leases is freely agreed between the parties. If it is less than three years it will be extended on expiry to three years, and thereafter automatically year by year. The previous law applies to contracts from before June 2013 which establishes contracts for a minimum of one year, renewable up to five years. The first year is mandatory for both tenant and landlord, while the remaining four years are optional for the tenant and obligatory for the landlord.

Due to limited space in Spanish cities, locals are used to living in multi-family residential buildings. Barcelona is no exception to this. Single-family detached homes with a garden or even semi-detached homes are very difficult to find in the city. Those who wish to live in this type of house need to go to residential areas outside the city.

Bear in mind that in Barcelona, socialising is mostly done outdoors and there is little entertaining at home. Bedrooms are considered a purely functional place to sleep and are often comparatively small.

Flats may be furnished or unfurnished. Furnished flats include basic living, dining and bedroom furniture and basic appliances such as a refrigerator, cooker and washing machine. You can negotiate the items to be included with the owner.

CHOOSING A PLACE TO LIVE

THE NEIGHBOURHOODS OF BARCELONA

Barcelona is divided into ten administrative districts, each one with its own district council. These districts are Ciutat Vella, Eixample, Gracia, Horta-Guinardo, Les Corts, Nou Barris, Sant Andreu, Sant Marti, Sants-Montjuic and Sarria-Sant Gervasi. These districts are subdivided into neighbourhoods or barris.

The following is a brief overview of the most popular neighbourhoods of Barcelona.

➔ 1 Barri Gòtic / El Born

Ciutat Vella, meaning Old City, is the historic centre of Barcelona. This district, with its Roman, Medieval and Gothic architecture, narrow, winding streets and intriguing mix of old and new, is a magnet for tourists and locals alike. El Born and the Barri Gòtic or Gothic Quarter stand out as the most interesting neighbourhoods in the district.

The Gothic Quarter holds the remnants of Barcelona's Roman past. Its main attractions are the magnificent Barcelona Cathedral, Plaça Sant Jaume and its beautiful government buildings, the buzzing nightlife in and around Carrer de Ferran and Plaça Reial, and the interesting shops in the commercial area of Portal de l'Àngel. The area also features two of the best food markets of the city, Boqueria and Santa Caterina.

Nearby is La Rambla, at the top of which is Plaça Catalunya. The neighbourhood is a short walk from Barcelona's other attractions and has excellent public transport links to other parts of the city.

El Born, once a medieval trading venue, is now one of the most fashionable areas of Barcelona. It is known for its vibrant nightlife and excellent shopping. It is also home to the famous Santa Maria del Mar Cathedral and the Picasso Museum. El Born is located between Via Laietana and Barceloneta and is served by the Metro stops Barceloneta and Jaume I on Line 4. It is a ten-minute walk from La Rambla and from the beach. Parc de Ciutadella and the Barcelona Zoo are also nearby.

Ciutat Vella is a trendy district that draws a hip, youthful crowd. Many of the buildings in this area have been renovated and turned into rental apartments, which have become popular among young local professionals, expatriates and tourists.

Plaça Reial

La Pedrera

→ 2 Eixample

The Eixample neighbourhood is by far the largest in Barcelona. It stretches from Plaça Espanya to Plaça de les Glories Catalanes and from Ciutat Vella to Gràcia. The whole area is set out in a grid, with each block having an inner courtyard. This grid design, a masterpiece of 19th-century Catalan urban planner Ildefons Cerdà, makes it very easy to find one's way in the neighbourhood.

The Eixample contains the largest concentration of modernist architecture in Europe. It is also the economic and commercial hub of Barcelona and a high-class residential neighbourhood. Passeig de Gràcia, home to most of Barcelona's exclusive designer shops and restaurants, is at the heart of the Eixample, and divides it into two: Left Eixample (Eixample Esquerra) and Right Eixample (Eixample Dreta). Also on this boulevard are two of Antoni Gaudí's most iconic buildings: Casa Batlló and Casa Milà.

In the Eixample, one can find spacious apartments with high ceilings, inside elegant Catalan Modernist buildings with long corridors and elaborate facades. The inner courtyards in each block give most buildings a natural source of light both in front and behind.

This neighbourhood is very central and has excellent transport links to the rest of the city. It appeals to residents of all age groups.

Parc Güell

→ 3 Gràcia

Gràcia is just off the upper end of Passeig de Gràcia, but when entering one feels like leaving Barcelona and going into a whole different world. Gràcia was in fact an independent village that was absorbed by Barcelona in 1897.

Gràcia has a network of narrow streets and charming bench-lined squares. It is home to sidewalk cafes and bistros, low-key night-spots, alternative theatres and quirky shops that draw a youthful clientele. Yet behind its trendy, bohemian character lies a traditional neighbourhood of proud, elderly locals.

A Metro line runs through the heart of the neighbourhood.

→ 4 Poblenuu

Poblenuu was a traditional industrial area of Barcelona that is now rapidly being transformed through the 22@ project into the new Barcelona's technological and innovation district.

22@ is creating a diverse and balanced environment in which the most innovative companies exist alongside research and technology-transfer centres, together with housing and green areas.

Its closeness to the beach makes it attractive for new housing complexes, and it is now starting to attract local and international businesses. It may be hard to find parking in this area during the day when it is buzzing with business activity, but at night some streets are not so busy.

Many of Poblenuu's old warehouse buildings have been converted into trendy lofts and studios.

The Rambla del Poblenuu adds a unique, local character to this neighbourhood, retaining a village appeal with a great selection of shops, markets, bars and restaurants.

Vila Olímpica

→ 5 Diagonal Mar

This newly developed area by the sea is part of the construction boom of the previous decade and of a strategic regeneration of the city's seafront. The wide streets and avenues are lined with numerous high-rise, condominium-style apartment buildings, as well as lower walk-up complexes with community areas and swimming pools.

Diagonal Mar has a large shopping centre and several 4-star hotels. Many of the apartments in this zone are rented out to the employees of the multinational companies that have set up offices in the nearby area.

→ 6 Vila Olímpica

This was the site of the Olympic Village of the 1992 Games held in Barcelona and is very close the Port Olímpic and beaches. After the Olympics, the area's buildings were transformed into apartments, and the whole area was renovated to accommodate gardens, terraces and community areas. New buildings were constructed in the surrounding areas along Avinguda d'Icària and Carrer de la Marina.

Vila Olímpica is well connected to the rest of the city by metro, tram and bus services. It is also within walking distance of Parc de la Ciutadella, the Barcelona Zoo and the Poblenou neighbourhood. It has a modern shopping centre with a supermarket and movie theatres playing movies in their original version.

→ 7 Pedralbes

Pedralbes is a quiet, exclusive residential area with luxury buildings and wide green spaces. Some developments have private gardens and swimming pools. This neighbourhood also houses many of the city's international and private schools and the ESADE and IESE business schools.

The area has easy access to motorways and the airport and is fairly well served by buses going to the city centre.

→ 8 Sant Gervasi

Sant Gervasi, at the foot of Tibidabo hill, is another quiet, upmarket residential area. It has a distinguished history, being the site of the Bellesguard, built by King Martin I at the beginning of the 15th century and completely refurbished by Antoni Gaudí in the early 20th century. Spacious second homes and Catalan Modernist houses remain, as well as many convents and religious schools. Gaudí's Les Teresianes convent is particularly remarkable. The neighbourhood also boasts the beautiful hilltop parks of Monterols and El Putxet, which command good views over Barcelona.

The neighbourhood has a great community atmosphere and is very popular with Barcelona families. It also offers a good selection of shops and restaurants.

Sant Gervasi is 10-15 minutes by car from the city centre. It is also connected to the centre by Line 7 of the Ferrocarril de la Generalitat de Catalunya (FGC) railway.

→ 9 Les Corts

Les Corts is a neighbourhood with a very heterogeneous urban fabric, as it combines buildings from 1800 and 1900 with more modern constructions.

It corresponds to the oldest and most central area of the old municipality of Les Corts which was incorporated into Barcelona in 1897.

In the highest part, situated above Avinguda Diagonal, Neolithic and Iberian remains were found as well as a Roman necropolis.

→ 10 Turó Parc

This area features properties that overlook Turó Parc, one of Barcelona's most beautiful green spaces.

Excellent shops and restaurants are close by in the commercial areas of Pau Casals, Plaça Francesc Macià and Avinguda Diagonal.

→ 11 Sarrià

Sarrià, a charming old neighbourhood at the foot of the Collserola hills, has an historic quarter that has preserved most of its original personality. Sarrià, like Gràcia, was once an independent town, hence its unique village appeal.

The neighbourhood's two FGC (Catalan railway) stations, Reina Elisenda and Sarrià, make getting to the city centre quite easy.

METROPOLITAN AREA: SURROUNDING TOWNS AND CITIES

→ 12 Sant Just Desvern / Esplugues de Llobregat

Sant Just Desvern and Esplugues de Llobregat are municipalities in the Baix Llobregat region of the Barcelona metropolitan area. They are located south of Barcelona, just 15 minutes by car to the city centre.

Sant Just and Esplugues are quiet residential areas with vast green spaces and great views of the sea and the city of Barcelona. Many of the properties here are recently constructed apartments and houses with swimming pools. It is also possible to find detached, single-family homes in this area. It has all the essential commercial and public services.

Esplugues is home to the American and German schools and is thus very popular with German and American residents.

→ 13 Castelldefels / Gavà / Sitges

The history of Castelldefels can be traced back to the year 911. Its castle was built in the Middle Ages, as well as the towers of the original city wall, which can be found today in the city centre.

Castelldefels is 20 minutes away from the city centre and 10 minutes from the airport, taking either the C-246 or the A-16 motorways. The public transportation system is excellent, with both buses and trains to Barcelona leaving every 20 minutes from several locations throughout the area.

Bordered by a mile-long sandy beach to the east and hills to the west, Castelldefels has a mild climate. A favourite spot for tourists, it has many restaurants serving a variety of cuisines and a number of good hotels.

Castelldefels is attractive to people who like living near the sea and to families whose children go to the British school, which is located in the area.

The town of Gavà boasts four kilometres of coastline frequented by beach lovers and the mountains of Garraf Natural Park. It is one of the biggest municipalities in the Baix Llobregat area. It is located 15 kilometres from Barcelona and 10 kilometres from the international airport, and can be reached by bus, train and car. It is connected to Barcelona by the C-32 and C-246 motorways.

Sitges

Sitges, a city about 35 kilometres south-west of Barcelona, is a very popular tourist destination. It is known worldwide for its beaches, nightspots and historical sites, as well as its annual Film Festival and Carnival. Many expatriate families live in Sitges' residential districts of Vallpineda, La Levantina, Quint Mar and Rocamar

→ 14 Sant Cugat / Vallès Occidental

Sant Cugat is a town in the Vallès Occidental area, just 12 kilometres away from Barcelona. Its strategic location and excellent transport links to the city allows many of its residents to live in Sant Cugat and work in Barcelona. Although it has grown in size and population, Sant Cugat has managed to preserve the essence of a quiet town, and its residents enjoy a high quality of life.

Sant Cugat del Vallès

Sant Cugat offers new condominiums with common areas, swimming pools and gardens. Here it is also possible to find detached, single-family homes. This and the town's quiet, family-oriented atmosphere appeal to many expatriate families.

Sant Cugat has different residential areas, all well connected to each other and the city centre by buses and FGC stations. Larger flats and houses can be found in the Eixample area, an older residential part of town, and in Golf-Can Trabal, a residential zone of the town's Golf Club.

Parc Central-Turó de Can Mates and Coll Favà-Volpelleres are Sant Cugat's newest residential areas. Parc Central and Coll Favà are the closest to the city centre. In all these zones you can find flats with communal areas and to a lesser extent terraced houses.

Other residential areas include Valldoreix and Mirasol, which were originally summer vacation destinations of Barcelona residents.

Other municipalities in Vallès Occidental also offer attractive housing options. Bellaterra, in the municipality of Cerdanyola del Vallès, is home to the campus of the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona (UAB).

➔ 15 El Maresme

El Maresme is a county (comarca) located along the coast, between the Mediterranean Sea and Catalonia's coastal hills and bordering Vallès Oriental to the west. It has over 400,000 residents, 100,000 of which live in the capital and largest city, Mataró.

El Maresme is well connected to Barcelona by the old Royal Way (Camí Reial), now the N-II main road, and by the Barcelona-Mataró railway, which was the first ever on the Iberian Peninsula when it was finished in 1848. More recent constructions are the Barcelona-Mataró section of the C-32, the first motorway in Spain, and its subsequent enlargement, the Mataró-Palafolls section.

El Maresme features long sandy beaches and beautiful hills. Its main sources of income are its vineyards, its textile and fishing industries, and tourism. Its tourist spots and residential areas are well equipped with hotels, restaurants, camping and leisure areas and sports facilities.

THE BARCELONA RENTAL AND PROPERTY MARKET

Barcelona is a major tourist destination and convention venue. In addition, it has become one of the most preferred destinations for a large number of multinational companies, organizations and individuals who decide to settle or start operations here. It is also a popular choice for foreigners looking for second or holiday homes.

BUYING PROPERTY IN BARCELONA

The NIE is a legal requirement when buying property in Spain, so make sure you have obtained this before starting the buying process. You will also need a Spanish bank account to pay not only for the property itself, but also the applicable professional fees, taxes and charges on the purchase.

Another important step is to hire a reputable and independent solicitor (advocat). If you do not speak Spanish or Catalan, a bilingual solicitor can also translate essential documents and explain things you may not understand.

It also helps to consider your means of finance early on. Many overseas buyers in Spain purchase in cash, but you also have the option to take out a mortgage, either with a Spanish bank or your local bank's subsidiary business in Spain. Maximum loans are generally 75% of the purchase price.

Once you have chosen a property to buy, your solicitor should then carry out all the necessary checks on it to ensure that the sale is legal and that there are no debts secured against the property.

Be aware that in Spain mortgages can be passed on to the new owner. Once your solicitor has provided you with written confirmation that everything is in order and checked that there are no burdens on the property, you should sign an earnest money contract setting the term of the final sale before a notary, stating the price and the method of payment. You do not need to sign anything else until the signing of the title deeds (escritura pública).

When you sign the earnest money contract, you pay a sum which is usually 10% of the sale price. The contract must provide a comprehensive description of the property's specifications and characteristics. If the owner then decides not to sell or is in breach of the earnest money contract, they have to refund double the amount paid as earnest money, i.e. multiplied by two. If the buyer breaches the earnest money contract they will forfeit the amount paid.

The full title deeds are signed by the seller, the buyer and a notary on the completion date and usually take a few months to process.

From 1 June 2013 properties for sale or rent must have an energy performance certificate which specifies CO₂ emissions compared to the dimensions of the building on a scale from A to G. This means the new buyer or tenant can consider energy efficiency as a factor in their decision to buy or rent. Owners who wish to sell or rent housing have to give this certificate to the buyer or tenant before closing the transaction.

RENTAL CONTRACTS

Once you have chosen a flat to rent and the owner agrees to rent the property to you, the first thing to do is make a down payment. The down payment is equal to a month's rent and becomes part of the deposit once the lease is signed.

Owners reserve the right to choose a tenant based on their references and specific conditions. You should be able to show the owner your work contract and other proof of income, as well as a copy of your passport or residence card.

A tenant wishing to leave the property and terminate the contract is required to send written notification to the landlord at least two months in advance, specifying the date of cancellation of the contract.

Rent increases annually in accordance with the Consumer Price Index (Índex de Preus al Consum or IPC).

Payments

The following are payments associated with rental contracts.

- CURRENT MONTH'S RENT.
- SECURITY DEPOSIT. The tenant must pay a security deposit (fiança) equivalent to one month's rent for an unfurnished apartment and two months' rent for a furnished one. The deposit will be reimbursed to the tenant upon termination of the contract.
- BANK GUARANTEE. Another possible requirement for renting an apartment is the bank guarantee (aval bancari). This requires the tenant to deposit three to six months' rent in a separate bank account for the duration of the rental contract. This amount will remain untouched, while still earning interest, as a guarantee to the landlord. This is to provide the landlord with cash to cover outstanding rent and any legal expenses incurred in the eviction of a non-complying tenant. The full amount plus earned interest is reimbursed to the tenant upon termination of the contract. The guarantee is separate from the security deposit.
- AGENCY FEE. Those renting through a rental agency must also pay a commission equivalent to 10% of the annual rent plus 21% value-added tax (Impost del Valor Afegit or IVA).

You can make all the necessary payments by bank transfer from your Spanish bank account. You can also pay in cash or with a Spanish bank cheque, but not with a credit card.

Rent must be paid during the first five days of the month. The rent and utility bills are usually paid by direct debit from your Spanish bank account (see “Money and banking” section).

➔ Tenant and landlord responsibilities

After an initial inspection of the flat and a review of the inventory (if furnished), tenants have 15 to 30 days to report any damage found in the apartment and any repairs needed. Owners are obliged to take the necessary action. After the first month, tenants are responsible for normal wear and tear and repairs, with the exception of damage caused by structural faults, water-pipe breakage and flooding from outside sources. A good relationship with your landlord or administrator is highly recommended to ensure good communication and prompt solutions.

➔ Pets

In general not many owners accept pets in their apartments. Those who do may ask for an extra deposit.

UTILITIES

Rental contracts include a clause stating that utilities are installed. This means that all you need to do is call the utility companies to request a name or account change. Administrators usually offer to take care of this.

If the utilities are not available, it can take up to a week for them to be set up. Charges may apply.

To get your utility service connected, you are required to present your NIE or passport number, your bank account details, the number and signing date of your rental contract, the last bill and a Cèdula d'Habitabilitat, a document that certifies the property's fitness for occupation. Connection fees may apply.

All utilities (gas, water, electricity and telephone) are usually paid by direct debit (see “Money and banking” section). You should receive a bill before the money is deducted from your account, so remember to check that the amount deducted matches the bill.

➔ Electricity

Electricity is priced using the international system of a small standing charge and a further charge per kilowatt-hour consumed. This rate decreases as consumption increases. Electricity is billed every month based on the power rating and the kilovolt, which in Spain is 220 volts AC with a frequency of 50 hertz.

The main power suppliers in Barcelona are:

FECESA ENDESA

GAS NATURAL

IBERDROLA

Spain uses Type C or Europlug power outlets, with two round pins. Those from outside Europe may need an adapter for any appliances from their home country they wish to use in Spain. Those from countries using the 110-volt system also need a voltage converter.

Gas

Mains or bottled gas is available in Barcelona. Many homes have a combined gas hot-water and heating system. You are billed for gas every two months. Like all utility bills, gas bills can be paid by direct debit.

GAS NATURAL

TEL : +34 902 200 605

→ www.gasnaturalfenosa.es

With the progressive deregulation of the energy sector in Spain and the distinction between energy distributors and retailers, companies such as Endesa, Iberdrola and Gas Natural can offer their customers combined rates for electricity and gas.

Water

In Barcelona, water is supplied exclusively by Aigües de Barcelona. Bills are sent out every three months.

AIGÜES DE BARCELONA

TEL : +34 900 710 710

Tap water in Barcelona is safe to drink, but is quite hard and has a mineral taste. Most residents prefer to drink bottled water.

Landline telephones

There are several national and a few regional providers of fixed-line telephone services in Spain. Different providers offer a wide range of plans, including flat-rate charges (tarifas planes), and it is up to you to shop around for the best deal. Remember, however, that most fixed lines are still provided by Telefónica-Movistar, the long-standing national telephone company, even if you decide to use another provider for your calling charges.

Providers also offer standard services such as call waiting, call redirect and voice mail.

Having a landline installed generally takes four to five days, but it can take longer in some cases. All calls within Spain are billed in the same way. You pay an amount for establishing the call and then a per-minute charge applies. All charges are subject to VAT.

Spain's country code is 34. All major cities in Spain have their own prefixes. Barcelona's prefix is 93, while Madrid's is 91.

➔ Mobile phones

Spain operates on a GSM network. If you currently own an unlocked GSM phone, it will work in Spain with a new SIM card.

When choosing a mobile-phone service provider and pricing plan, consider when and where you usually call. Prepaid and contract rate plans can either be hourly or universal. With hourly rates, tariffs are much lower in the early morning and late in the day and are higher during business hours. Universal rates offer one fixed rate regardless of the time of day, but this is typically more expensive. There are also different rates depending on where you call: calls to mobiles with the same operator are the cheapest while calls to landlines and mobiles with other operators are more expensive.

Providers also offer special promotions that are worth looking into.

You can choose between a prepaid phone and a contract.

A prepaid phone offers more flexibility. To get more credit for your prepaid phone, you can buy recharge cards or buy credits through your phone, from any cash dispenser or online. All prepaid-phone users are required by law to present their ID (identification) to their mobile-phone provider.

Alternatively, you can sign a contract. With a contract, you get monthly bills, lower calling rates and better deals on new phones. The typical length of a contract is one year. If you cancel before this, you will usually have to pay a penalty. To sign a contract, you are required to present an identity document and a recent bank statement. Your phone bill is also paid through direct debit.

➔ Internet

It is fairly easy to get high-speed Internet access in Spain. The two options available are ADSL or cable modem (up to 50 Megabytes per second). Besides the monthly fee, providers often charge a signup fee (quota d'alta), but many operators waive or reduce this to attract more customers. High-speed access usually requires a contract of at least one year, with associated penalties for early termination. Many Internet packages are bundled with telephone and television services.

There are also several Wi-Fi (pronounced wee-fee in Spanish and Catalan) options in Barcelona. The city has 500 hotspots with free access in every city neighbourhood, mostly municipal premises such as public libraries, civic centres or markets. In addition, an increasing number of establishments in the city are making wireless Internet connections available to their customers.

Telephone and Internet companies also offer monthly subscriptions to their Wi-Fi services, which usually work with a USB Wi-Fi modem.

Those with Internet-enabled smart phones can also take advantage of Barcelona's 3G and more recently 4G networks. Access to a 3G or 4G network is usually included in your mobile phone's pricing plan.

Those who do not have access to a computer can go to Barcelona's many Internet cafes, which charge per hour or using multi-hour passes called abonaments de connexió. They also offer other services such as printing, scanning and using basic programs.

Barcelona City Council has launched a range of ICT-based services to offer Barcelona's residents an improved public service with greater flexibility, accessibility and speed. For instance, mobile phones can be used to access the city agenda of what's on, the map or the directory of facilities, centres and services. The City Council also has information services specially designed for access using mobile devices.

WASTE MANAGEMENT

Bins sited throughout the city enable easy and accessible separate waste collection. There are bins for organic waste (brown), glass (green), packaging, plastic and cans (yellow), cardboard and paper (blue) and other waste (grey). Waste separation is rounded off with a number of green point recycling centres (permanent facilities in each district and mobile ones). Other types of waste require specific handling: furniture and junk are collected from the street one day a week, depending on the street, while the city also has special bins for used clothing and collection systems for debris and asbestos cement.

Barcelona currently has three different types of waste collection:

- Bin system, the most widespread in the city's various neighbourhoods
- Pneumatic system, cleaner and used in Gràcia, Vila Olímpica and Diagonal Mar
- Door to door system, especially in the historic centre as their streets are too narrow for bins and rubbish collection vehicles.

DOMESTIC SERVICES

If you need domestic help you can choose to hire a live-in service person, daytime help, part-time help or a cleaning person. A professional agency can find the right person for you and help you with administrative issues. Babysitting services are also offered by individuals and agencies.

EDUCATION

CHOOSING A SCHOOL

Choosing a school in Barcelona for your children depends on their previous educational experience and how long you plan to stay in Spain.

Families who are likely to move frequently from one country to another during the children's school years tend to choose an international school so that the children will have some degree of educational continuity regardless of the family's location.

If you plan to live in Spain for a number of years, you may want to enrol your children in a regular Catalan school. If you plan to be in Spain for a short while, then return to your home country, you may want to give your children the experience of a year in a Catalan school, or you may want them to continue with the kind of programme they followed back home.

THE SPANISH SCHOOL SYSTEM

There are three types of schools in the Spanish school system: state, private, and state-funded (concertada). Tuition is free in state schools, which are completely funded by the government. Private schools are privately financed. Concertada schools are privately run schools that receive some government funding. Tuition is also free in concertada schools, though there may be voluntary fees and expenses for extracurricular activities.

Primary education (Educació Primària) is compulsory in Spain from the age of six. After finishing primary school at age 12, children then move on to a secondary school to study Compulsory Secondary Education (Educació Secundària Obligatoria or ESO) from age 12 to 16. This is followed by the Formació Post-Obligatoria where students can choose to leave school and start working, or do two years of Batxillerat and then enter university, or gain more practical vocational training through the Formació Professional or FP programme.

For more information, visit → www.bcn.cat/educacio (Spanish and Catalan only)

PRE-PRIMARY

Pre-primary education is for children between 0 and 6 years old. It is organised in two cycles of three courses:

- FIRST CYCLE (0-3 years old): the schools that only provide pre-primary or nursery education are called llars d'infants or escoles bressol. This first level of education is not free of charge. There are state schools (whose cost is partially funded by the government) and private schools.

• SECOND CYCLE (3-6 years old): the schools that provide this second cycle are called parvularis, although there are also infant and primary education schools (CEIP) that cover children's education from 3 to 12 years old. In this second level education is universal and free of charge in state and concertada schools (but not in private schools).

There are also a number of multilingual nurseries and day care centres throughout Barcelona and its surrounding areas.

INTERNATIONAL AND BILINGUAL SCHOOLS

There are two types of international schools: schools that follow their country's curriculum with or without Spanish and/or Catalan as second languages, and schools that teach in foreign languages while following a Spanish curriculum. Although these latter schools are classified as international, most of its students are Spanish, so your children will be exposed to Spanish and Catalan through their classmates.

English-language international schools either follow a particular educational curriculum throughout, such as the British or American system, or switch after primary level to the local curriculum. A Spanish secondary system means that students are taught the Compulsory Secondary Education (Educació Secundària Obligatòria or ESO) curriculum from ages 12 to 16 and then Batxillerat from ages 16 to 18 if they wish to enter university.

In Barcelona there are French, American, British schools. There is also a German school, an Italian school, a Japanese school and a Swiss school. These country-specific international schools are funded by their respective countries and follow these countries' curriculums. Although they are open to students of all nationalities, priority is given to nationals of the country funding the school. Those of a different nationality who have done part of their schooling in that country are also given priority.

Schools based outside the city offer school bus services.

Waiting lists for international schools are long and there is limited capacity. It is therefore recommended that you apply as soon as possible.

LOCAL SCHOOLS

The Spanish curriculum is followed in local schools. Catalan is the official medium of instruction in schools in Catalonia. Eighty percent of teaching in public and concertada schools is conducted in Catalan. All correspondence between parent and school is also in Catalan. Spanish and a foreign language, usually English, are also taught in schools.

All children living in Catalonia have the right to free education. School places are distributed, first through a point system, then through a draw.

School enrolment for September generally begins around March. There is a single pre-enrolment process for the whole of Catalonia for state and concertat schools which takes into account proximity to the school, availability of places, financial and family situation, etc. Before enrolling your child in any school, you must have the following essential information:

- School regulations, procedures and timetables.
- Number of places offered by the school.
- Criteria for admission of pupils.
- Territorial map of proximity (Àrees territorials de proximitat). This is an important prioritisation criterion for schools with limited places. You can consult your territorial map of proximity on the website of the Barcelona Education Consortium (Consorci d'Educació de Barcelona).

- Assignment between schools.
- The school's educational goals and methods.
- School services and out-of-school activities.

To consult your territorial map of proximity, go to Centres i serveis educatius > Àrees territorials de proximitat at → www.edubcn.cat (Catalan only)

For additional information on the pre-registration process in the state and concertat education system visit Estudiar a Catalunya > Preinscripció where you will also find information in other languages:
 → www.gencat.cat/ensenyament

To look for schools (primary and secondary schools, Batxillerat and Formació Professional), go to the Consulta de centres page on → www.bcn.cat/educacio (Spanish and Catalan only) or → www.edubcn.cat (Catalan only)

SCHOOL TERMS

The school year is divided into three terms: September to December, January to March or April and April to June. There are three major holiday periods: Summer, Christmas and Easter.

HIGHER EDUCATION

Spain is a member of the European Higher Education Area, which was created by its member states to ensure more comparable, compatible and consistent systems of higher education in Europe. Spanish universities have adopted a new system of four-year Bachelor's degrees (Grau) and postgraduate degrees that include EHEA-adapted Master's degrees (Màster Oficial) and doctorate (Doctorat) degrees.

Barcelona has several world-class universities and higher-education institutions, both state and private. They are known for excellent academic programmes and cutting-edge research in a wide range of fields.

HEALTHCARE

PUBLIC HEALTHCARE

Spain has one of the best public health systems in the world which provides universal care to all of its citizens.

The ambulatori, or, officially, the Centre d'Atenció Primària (CAP), is a public health centre where medical care is provided for free. Each district of Barcelona has its own CAP, whose patients are determined by area of residence. When you register, you will be assigned a general practitioner and, if you have children, a paediatrician. Doctors work at certain hours and you will be asked to choose a regular time slot that suits you for a visit to your doctor. Usually you can get to see your primary-care doctor within a day or two after calling for an appointment.

Except in the case of emergencies, it is through your primary-care doctor that you can have access to a specialist. Also note that public dental care only covers preventive, diagnosis and therapeutic care (such as dental extractions in case of infection or inflammation and preventive exploration to pregnant women), and services such as dental extractions of healthy teeth, dental implants or orthodontics are excluded.

To register and receive your health card from Catalut, the Catalan Health Service, you need to go to your nearest CAP and present your City Council registration certificate (empadronament), some form of identification and proof you are working as an employee or freelancer in Spain and your Social Security registration. People who are not registered in the Social Security system must have public or private health insurance which covers them while they are resident in Spain.

For more information on the Catalan healthcare system, visit the official website of Catsalut → www.gencat.cat/salut

HOSPITALS

Public hospitals in Barcelona provide excellent emergency services and elective and non-elective medical treatment. They are staffed by some of the best medical professionals in the country and are equipped with the latest in medical technology.

PHARMACIES

For minor aches and pains, you can go to your nearest pharmacy and ask a pharmacist for advice. Spanish pharmacists are highly qualified and can give you advice on which over-the-counter drugs to take and how to take them. Late-night pharmacies, called farmàcies de guàrdia, are open during weekends and holidays. Some pharmacies are open seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

For information about pharmacies in Barcelona visit → www.bcn.cat/salut in the Pharmacies section

The Farmaguia app locates pharmacies in real time so you can find open and late-night pharmacies

PRIVATE HEALTH INSURANCE

Another available option is the private healthcare sector. Private insurance providers (mútues) usually have their own network of hospitals, clinics and laboratories. Note that most companies only cover care provided by medical professionals on their list, called a quadre mèdic, although some refund a certain percentage of the fees charged by professionals not on the list.

MATERNITY AND PATERNITY

Barcelona offers high-standard maternity facilities that range from large hospitals to smaller clinics.

Parents must register their child in person at the Civil Registry within eight days of birth. Each birth is registered in a document called Family Book, the Llibre de Família.

➔ Maternity

The leave period is 16 weeks with full pay, the first six weeks of which must be taken by the mother. The remaining 10 weeks may be taken by the mother, the father or both. The mother must fulfil the following requirements to qualify for a leave:

- Those between 21 and 26 years of age on the date of the birth must have contributed to Social Security for 90 days within the seven years immediately prior to the start of the leave period or for 180 days throughout their working life prior to that date.
- Those over 26 years of age on the date of the birth must have contributed to Social Security for 180 days within the seven years immediately prior to the start of the leave period or for 360 days throughout their working life prior to that date.

➔ Paternity

The father is entitled to a 15 days leave as follows:

- 2 days of work leave, with full pay, at the child's birth (the day of birth and the following).
- Plus the right to take a leave of 13 uninterrupted days (either full or part-time) and to receive a paternity benefit covered by the Social Security System. This leave must be taken during the 16 weeks of the maternity leave or immediately after.

Requirements are:

- Being affiliated or in a situation assimilated to affiliation.
- Having contributed for 180 days in the 7 years immediately prior to the date of the start of the suspension of the work contract, or alternatively contributed for 360 days in all your working life before the above mentioned date.

For more information on maternity and paternity leaves, visit

→ www.seg-social.es/Internet_6/index.htm

PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES

Barcelona is considered to be a friendly city for people with disabilities. It has one of the best accessible urban environments amongst European cities. As an example, nearly 90% of the streets are accessible for wheelchair users and quite a lot of the traffic-lights are adapted for people with visual disabilities.

Public transport is easily accessible: all bus lines are accessible, as well as an increasing number of underground stations. Other special services are the support service at the beaches in summer, adapted municipal information services, accessible sports facilities and accessible game zones for children with disabilities.

Visit → www.bcn.cat/accessible

PETS

All pets should have the necessary vaccinations and certificates before they can be brought into Spain. Requirements vary depending on the country of origin and may take some time to process, so you are advised to contact the Spanish consulate in your area well in advance of your departure.

The European Pet Passport lets eligible pets cross borders in Europe. This booklet, which is issued by a licensed vet, contains obligatory information concerning each animal and is valid for its lifetime.

For more information, visit the Travel section of the European Commission website → www.ec.europa.eu (Only available in English, French and German)

The Pet Travel Scheme (PETS) allows eligible pets to travel to and from the United Kingdom without undergoing quarantine.

PRACTICAL INFORMATION

Things you need to know to get settled

USEFUL INFORMATION

ADDRESSES

The standard address format begins with the street name and number, followed by the floor number and the flat or unit number. For example, the address Carrer d'Aragó 137, 2n 3r corresponds to flat number 3 on the second floor of building 137 on Aragó street.

In Spain, the ground floor is either marked O or PB (planta baja in Spanish and planta baixa in Catalan). Ground-floor flats are usually called bajos in Spanish and baixos in Catalan, often abbreviated bjos/bxs. Some buildings also have a mezzanine (entresuelo or entresòl, entl), which is one floor up from the ground floor. One floor above this is the principal (pra). Successive floors are then marked 1, 2, etc. Negative numbers are used for floors below ground. The topmost floor is commonly called an ático in Spanish and àtic in Catalan.

* National holiday

 Regional holiday (Catalonia only)

 Local holiday (Barcelona only)

The following are holidays of cultural significance in Barcelona.

➤ Dia dels Reis

On the night of 5 January, Spanish towns and cities hold a Three Kings Procession. In Barcelona, the Three Kings, Melchior, Gaspar and Balthazar, arrive by boat and are formally welcomed by the mayor. They parade in the streets of Barcelona in a magnificent, five-kilometre procession called the Cavalcada. The Three Kings distribute sweets and presents to both young and old, accompanied by costumed characters and dancers with their elaborate floats and carriages.

➤ Diada de Sant Jordi

St. George, locally known as Sant Jordi, is the patron saint of Catalonia. Catalans celebrate his feast day on 23 April by exchanging books and roses. On this day, Barcelona's main shopping streets are filled with book and flower stalls decorated with the Catalan colours of red and yellow.

Despite the importance of this day all over Catalonia, it is not a public holiday.

➤ Revetlla de Sant Joan

On 23 June, the eve of the Feast Day of St. John, Catalans celebrate the summer solstice with bonfires, fireworks and a traditional pastry called coca de Sant Joan.

➤ La Diada

This holiday commemorates the fall of Barcelona to the Bourbon troops during the War of the Spanish Succession on 11 September 1714 after a siege lasting 14 months. The Catalan Parliament declared 11 September to be a Catalan national holiday and on that day events are organised in the streets and the Catalans display flags on their balconies.

➤ La Mercè Festival

Locals celebrate the feast day of Barcelona's patroness on 24 September with a large street party. Highlights include the Correfoc or Fire Run, featuring costumed devils and fire-breathing dragons, and the fireworks display near the Montjuïc fountain.

➤ New Year's Eve

Spaniards usually celebrate New Year's Eve or Cap d'any by going out and partying. At midnight, they wait for the twelve strokes that mark the beginning of the New Year. They eat one grape at each stroke to bring luck for every month of the year. Since 2013 Barcelona has celebrated New Year's Eve with a show featuring L'Ésser del Mil·lenni (The Millennium Soul) devised by the Fura dels Baus and which combines music, water and fire.

LOCAL TIME

Local time in the Spanish peninsula is one hour ahead of GMT, six hours ahead of US Eastern Standard Time and nine hours ahead of Pacific Standard Time. When it is 6:00 p.m. in Barcelona, it is 5:00 p.m. in London and noon in New York.

Spain, like the rest of Europe, observes Summer Time. Clocks go forward one hour on the last Sunday in March and go backward one hour on the last one in October. This time change takes place simultaneously in all EU member states.

MEALTIMES

Spaniards tend to eat later than other Europeans. They usually have a light breakfast of fruit juice, coffee and a pastry or sandwich between 9:00 and 11:00 a.m. Lunch is between 2:00 and 3:00 pm. Dinner starts between 9:00 and 10:00 p.m.

OPENING TIMES AND WORKING HOURS

Most establishments are open from Monday to Saturday and are closed on Sundays. They open between 9:00 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. and close between 1:00 and 2:00 p.m. They then reopen between 4:30 and 5:00 p.m. and close between 8:00 and 9:00 p.m. Markets open earlier, between 7:00 and 8:00 a.m. Smaller shops close by 2:00 or 3:00 p.m. Some shops do not open on Saturday afternoons.

Major shopping centres and a growing number of shops open all day, from 10:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. from Monday to Saturday. A few shops and shopping centres are open on Sundays and holidays, mostly around Christmas.

In summer, many restaurants and shops close for all or part of August. Many businesses adopt a different work schedule from June to September, usually from 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

The typical work day starts between 8:00 and 9:00 a.m. Workers usually go on break at 1:30 or 2:00 p.m. Work starts again between 3:00 and 4:00 p.m. and finishes between 6:00 and 7:30 p.m. Many workers also enjoy a shortened work schedule from June to September.

POSTAL SERVICES

Correos (Sociedad Estatal de Correos y Telégrafos) is the national postal service of Spain. Through Correos, you can send letters, documents, telegrams, faxes and parcels. You can even send money by postal order or through Western Union. Correos also offers national and international express delivery services and an online tracking system.

The main post office in Barcelona is on Plaça d'Antoni López, at the end of Via Laietana near Barceloneta and Port Vell. Here you can buy stamps, send letters and parcels, and ask for a post office box. It is open from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. from Monday to Friday and from 8:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. on Saturdays. It is closed on Sundays.

There are numerous post offices throughout Barcelona, all with a distinctive yellow sign. Be aware that not all post offices have the same opening times, so be sure to check the Correos website for this information.

You can also buy stamps at tobacconists (see the Tobacconists section) and drop your mail in one of the yellow post boxes found all around the city.

Visit → www.correos.es for more information

TIPPING

Restaurants are required by law to include service charges in their menu prices. There is no expected rate for tips. Most people leave small change if they are satisfied with service.

It is also customary to tip hotel porters and washroom attendants. Five percent is the usual tip for taxi drivers, more for longer journeys and if the driver helped with your luggage.

TOBACCONISTS

Tobacconist shops (estanc) are identified by a brown and yellow sign with the words Tabacos or Tabacs. Considered a Spanish institution, tobacconists not only sell tobacco, cigarettes and smoking articles but also postage stamps and many official government forms for minor bureaucratic procedures. They also sell sweets, postcards, public transport cards and phone cards.

GETTING IN

Barcelona International Airport

BY PLANE

Barcelona International Airport

Barcelona International Airport (IATA: BCN, ICAO: LEBL), also known as El Prat, is a major transport hub where more than 100 airlines operate. It handles domestic and international flights. Most international and domestic airlines as well as low-cost carriers operate from this airport.

The airport has two terminals, T1 and T2. T2 is further subdivided into sectors A, B, and C. Both terminals are linked by a free shuttle bus that runs every six or eight minutes, with a travel time of 10 minutes. A new metro line connecting the airport to the city centre is currently under construction.

The airport's policy is to use terminals by companies, irrespective of the origin or destination of the flight. T1 mainly hosts flights by companies belonging to the One World, Star Alliance and Sky team alliances, their associates and those operating intercontinental flights. The Barcelona-Madrid Pont Aeri (Shuttle) also has its own area in the T1 north pier. T2 is more geared towards non-associates and low-cost carriers.

Be aware that you can check in for your flight only at the terminal where it is going to depart, so make sure you know where to go before arriving at the airport.

For more information, visit → www.aena.es

The airport is about 10 kilometres away from the city centre. Public transport options to and from the airport include rail and bus.

The rail service from the airport is on the RENFE R-2 Nord: Aeroport Maçanet-Masanes suburban train line which leaves every half hour and calls at Sants Estació (19 minutes), Passeig de Gràcia (26 minutes) and El Clot (30 minutes) in the city centre. The train stops at T2, from where you can take the free shuttle bus to T1. Ticket vending machines are available at the airport station.

The Aerobús stops at T1 (A1) and between T2A and T2B (A2) and travels along Gran Via to Plaça Catalunya with a minimum travel time of 35 minutes. The service operates from 6:00 a.m. to 1:00 a.m., with higher frequencies at A1. Buses run every 5-10 minutes during most of the day.

For more information visit
→ www.aerobusbcn.com

Between 11:00 p.m. and 5:00 a.m., you can catch a night bus service (Nit Bus N17) from Plaça Catalunya to the airport. It runs every 20 minutes and the minimum travel time is 40 minutes.

Bus 46 also runs from both terminals to Plaça Espanya. Travel time is about one hour.

Taxis are widely available outside the terminals. There is an additional airport fee and a charge for each piece of luggage placed in the boot.

Private airport transfers can also be arranged for groups.

➔ Girona Airport

The airport of Girona, nearly 100 kilometres to the north, handles domestic and international flights by low-cost airlines, notably Ryanair.

For more information, visit → www.aena.es

The Barcelona bus service, run by Sagalés, offers a shuttle-bus transfer service between Estació del Nord in Barcelona and Girona Airport. Bus departure times are arranged in accordance with the arrival and departure times of Ryanair flights. The trip takes around one hour and ten minutes.

Girona Airport is also directly connected to Barcelona by the AP7 motorway. Driving time is approximately one hour.

For more information and bus timetables, visit → www.sagales.com

➔ Reus Airport

The airport of Reus, around 100 kilometres to the south of Barcelona, is also used by low-cost carriers.

Hispano Igualadina operates a shuttle bus service between Estació de Sants in Barcelona and Reus Airport. You can buy tickets in the ticket office in the arrivals terminal or from the bus driver. The journey time is approximately one hour and a half.

For more information and bus timetables, visit → www.igualadina.com

Alternatively, you can take the train from Barcelona Sants station to Reus and then take a local bus to the airport. The trip also takes about an hour and a half.

Reus Airport is also directly connected to Barcelona by the AP7 motorway. Driving time is approximately one hour

BY SEA

Barcelona has one of the busiest ports on the Mediterranean. Numerous cruise ships set sail from the port of Barcelona to other destinations. Ferries also dock and depart from the port. You can get to Barcelona by boat from the Costa Brava, the Balearic and Canary Islands, Genoa and Rome.

GETTING ORIENTED

The following geographical references will help you easily find your way around Barcelona.

The centre of the city is Plaça Catalunya, to the south of which you can find the old town and most of the museums and other places of historical interest in Barcelona. The famous Rambla stretches from Plaça Catalunya down to the statue of Columbus near the port. To the east of the Rambla is the beautiful Barri Gòtic, and to the west, the Barri del Raval.

From the Columbus monument you can follow Passeig Marítim on the seafront to the east, past Moll de la Fusta and Port Vell to colourful Barceloneta beach and Port Olímpic. To the west, following Avinguda Paral·lel, you get to Plaça Espanya at the foot of Montjuïc hill.

Tibidabo hill marks Barcelona's northern limit. Avinguda Diagonal runs diagonally across the whole city. Between Diagonal and Plaça Catalunya is most of the grid-patterned Eixample, which joins the old town with the neighbourhoods of Gràcia, Les Corts and Sarrià-Sant Gervasi. The main boulevard of the Eixample is the modern and stylish Passeig de Gràcia.

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION

Barcelona's excellent transport system makes it easy for everybody, even tourists and newcomers, to get around the city. The city's transportation network extends from the city centre to other parts of the metropolitan area and to surrounding towns and cities.

The city has an integrated tariff system that allows users to switch from one form of transportation to another using a single fare.

Transports Metropolitans de Barcelona (TMB) offers a wide range of travel cards to suit different needs. There are single tickets, transferable travel cards valid for 10 rides and personal travel cards valid for one, 30 and 90 days. There are also tourist travel cards and special travel cards for students, families and seniors.

Transport fares also vary by zone. The farther out from the city centre you go, the more expensive the fare.

Tickets and travel cards can be purchased at metro ticket booths and vending machines.

For more information visit the Tickets and fares section at → www.tmb.cat

BY RAIL

Metro and FGC

The Barcelona metro system is the easiest and fastest way to get around. The city's underground trains are clean, efficient and comfortable.

The metro network currently has 11 lines. It is jointly run by TMB and the Ferrocarrils de la Generalitat de Catalunya (FGC). TMB operates Metro lines 1 to 5 and 9 to 11 while the FGC operates FGC lines 6 to 8. The FGC system has lines within Barcelona and others that go to nearby towns and cities, such as Manresa, Terrassa and Sabadell.

For route maps, timetables and other information, visit → www.tmb.cat and → www.fgc.cat

Local and long-distance rail

RENFE, Spain's national train operator, operates both local and long-distance train links.

Local trains, known as Rodalies RENFE, run all across Catalonia. Some destinations are integrated into Barcelona's single-fare system and thus accept normal travel cards. Tickets can be bought at the stations' ticket windows or ticket machines.

RENFE also operates train links to other parts of Spain, notably the AVE high-speed trains to Madrid and other Spanish cities.

Estació de Sants is the main rail hub of Barcelona, with services to the rest of Spain including the AVE. Suburban, regional and French-border trains also use this station.

ESTACIÓ DE SANTS

Plaça dels Països Catalans s/n

International trains, as well as most regional rail lines with service to the rest of Catalonia, depart from Estació de França.

BY BUS

→ Day buses

Barcelona has over a hundred bus lines that provide transport links throughout the Barcelona metropolitan area. Each line has its own timetable, but buses generally run from 6:30 a.m. until 11:00 p.m. You can look at the information panels on bus stops to check the route and timetable, and in some cases waiting times due to the progressive introduction of dynamic information screens at stops and inside buses. Double check for special holiday schedules. The bus network is integrated into Barcelona's single-fare system.

Recently, starting in October 2012 and in successive stages, Barcelona has implemented a new system for organising its bus services by integrating into its existing network 28 new high-performance lines arranged horizontally (8 new H lines), vertically (17 new vertical lines, identified by the letter V) and diagonally (3 new D lines). This new system has higher occupancy vehicles, increases the frequency and offers a faster and more rational service while at the same time gaining in sustainability and efficiency. These new lines entail the gradual removal of some existing lines with similar routes.

For route maps, timetables and other information, visit → www.tmb.cat

For additional information on the new bus network visit → www.novaxarxabus.bcn.cat

🚌 Night buses

Barcelona is served by a network of night buses called Nitbus at night and in the small hours of the morning. These buses have their own routes, all of which stop at Plaça Catalunya. Night buses are integrated into Barcelona's single-fare system.

For night bus route maps, timetables and other information, visit the Nitbus section at → www.ambmobilitat.cat

BY TOURIST AND LEISURE TRANSPORT

TMB operates the Bus Turístic, a hop-on, hop-off tourist bus service with stops all over the city. Tickets can be bought onboard.

Private companies also offer a similar service.

The TMB's Montjuïc Cable Car (Telefèric de Montjuïc) runs between Port Vell and Montjuïc hill and lets passengers enjoy fantastic views over Barcelona.

TMB also runs the Tramvia Blau, an old-fashioned tram that connects Plaça Kennedy on Avinguda Tibidabo to the Tibidabo funicular railway station.

For more information about leisure transport operated by TMB, visit → www.tmb.cat

In addition to the Montjuïc funicular integrated into Barcelona's single-fare system, another funicular railway runs to the top of Tibidabo hill, which has an amusement park with spectacular views of the city.

For more information visit
→ www.tibidabo.cat

The FGC operates the Montserrat Rack Railway (Cremallera de Montserrat), Vall de Núria Rack Railway (Cremallera de Núria) and the two funicular railways in Montserrat, Sant Joan and Santa Cova.

BY TAXI

Taxis in Barcelona are yellow and black and show a green light when free. Fares are charged per kilometre.

Extra fees are charged for every piece of luggage stored in the boot and for trips to and from the airport, cruise-ship terminal and Fira Barcelona (The Barcelona Trade Fair). Taxi fares also vary depending on time of day and are higher on holidays.

Fares are displayed on the taximeter, the use of which is obligatory. At the end of the trip the driver will press a button that will automatically add all charges and show the total fare.

Taxis do not accept reservations except to go to the airport, but you can call for one a few minutes ahead.

For more information visit
→ www.taxibarcelona.cat

There are several apps that offer taxi-related services, such as Calcula tu Ruta (it calculates your route and prices) and By-Taxi (to ask for one). For more information visit the Transport section at

BY BIKE

Barcelona is a bicycle-friendly city with numerous bicycle paths.

Bicing is urban transport based on shared use of bicycles and is part of its public transport system. Residents with a yearly membership simply swipe their user cards at a service station to unlock and use a bicycle. The public bicycle network is spread throughout the city and currently includes 6,000 bicycles and 420 stations. Bicing stations are located near metro stations and bus stops, since the Bicing system is designed to complement other means of public transportation. For this reason, use of Bicing bicycles has a time limit. Users cannot be on the same bicycle for more than two consecutive hours.

The Bicing programme started in March 2007 and has since been growing in number of stations and users. It currently has nearly 100,000 subscribers and over 1 million monthly uses. The City Council's transport policy has also prioritised the construction of bicycle paths in recent years to promote this means of urban transportation.

Note that Bicing is part of the city's public transport system and is not for tourists or temporary visitors. There are, however, private bike-hire companies that offer similar services to visitors.

You can also download the app which monitors the status of bicycles and stations in real time.

PRIVATE TRANSPORTATION

CAR IMPORTATION

You can drive your car without registering it in Spain for six months, after which time it is necessary to import your vehicle. The process normally takes two months.

To import a vehicle, it needs to have been in your possession for more than 12 months from the time you get consular registration. You are required to present the original title of the vehicle, the original registration card, valid licence plates, a valid international insurance certificate, the car-purchase invoice, your NIE and your City Council registration certificate.

EU nationals do not need to pay import fees, only registration taxes. Non-EU nationals have to meet certain requirements to be exempt from import taxes.

DRIVING LICENCE

EU citizens do not need to change their driving license.

Non-EU nationals can use an international driving license during the first year after arrival in Spain. After a year, they are required to get a Spanish license.

To get one, you need to attend classes as well as take theoretical and practical driving tests. You can study for and take these tests in English with certain driving schools.

In some cases and for some countries, the Dirección General de Tráfico (General Directorate of Traffic) has a system for exchanging driving licences from a particular country for a Spanish one. To do this you have to ask for an appointment with the DGT and provide the required documentation.

For more information on driving licences valid in Spain and the exchange process visit → www.dgt.es

PARKING

Barcelona is a densely populated city with a high number of private vehicles on its roads. To control this high demand and meet the needs of both citizens and visitors, for many years the City Council has been promoting a sustainable, efficient transport policy that helps make Barcelona a liveable, modern and competitive city. The municipal company BSM is responsible for regulating underground parking in the city, as well as building and managing municipal parking facilities. It offers both pay-by-minute parking for short stays and different types of payment options for regular, long-term use.

For more information, visit
→ www.bsmsa.cat/mobilitat

Apart from municipal facilities, Barcelona also has private parking garages that charge from €12 to €25 a day according to the zone. The parking rates depend on the location of the car park and if it is in the open air or underground.

To find public and private car parks visit
→ www.bcn.cat/onaparcar

As an additional option to underground parking, the city of Barcelona also regulates street parking to improve traffic flow, decrease noise and air emissions and make better use of public spaces. This system, known as the Green Area (Àrea Verda), establishes different parking zones depending on each area of the city.

There are different kinds of parking spaces within the Green Area. In the Blue Area (Àrea Blava) within the Green Area, all vehicles can park for a maximum of two, three or four hours as indicated on the signs.

Also within the Green Area, there are Exclusive Areas reserved for residents. There are also Preferred Zones where non-residents are allowed to park for one or two hours.

For more information visit
→ www.areaverda.cat

To apply for parking within the Green Area, your vehicle must be registered with the City Council. You can apply by calling 010, at the City Councils' Virtual Office or in person at the following address with your passport number or NIE, the technical data of your vehicle, your car insurance and your registration document.

"ÀREA VERDA" AND "ÀREA BLAVA"

Plaça Carles Pi i Sunyer 8-10
OPENING HOURS: Monday to Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

There are several mobile apps for transport and parking. They include apparkB (to pay for Àrea Blava parking with your mobile) and WeSmartPark. To learn about them visit the Transport & Traffic section at → www.apps4bcn.cat

SOCIAL INTERACTION AND BUSINESS NETWORKING

Barcelona is a diverse and multicultural city with a large and active expatriate community of 150 different nationalities.

Around 18% of the city's population is composed of its thriving foreign community. Barcelona's openness and hospitality attract people from all over the world, many of whom decide to stay. This is thanks to the city's cosmopolitan atmosphere and the exceptional quality of life and outstanding career opportunities it offers.

One way to get involved in the international community is to join one of the many expatriate clubs and organisations that have been formed in Barcelona. These associations regularly organize a wide variety of events for both social interaction and business networking. These events and activities can connect you with fellow expatriates who can give you information and tips about life in your new home.

The international community also provides a growing number of activities and support groups for relocating families.

Chambers of commerce organise seminars and conferences and provide business people with networking opportunities.

Social groups, networking sites and forums are widely available on the Internet. They offer help and information in English and other languages, as well as opportunities to meet new people.

SPORTS AND LEISURE

PUBLIC SPORTS AND FITNESS CENTRES

Several Barcelona districts have their own public sports and fitness centres (centre esportiu). They are well maintained and equipped with indoor and/or outdoor swimming pools, fitness and exercise equipment and facilities for a variety of sports. They also offer a wide range of activities for adults and children at very competitive prices.

For more information on sports in Barcelona and searching the public sports facilities nearest to your location go to Barcelona City Council's sports website at

PRIVATE SPORTS AND FITNESS CLUBS

A number of private sports and fitness clubs are also available in Barcelona. They range from small clubs to large international franchises and offer various sport, exercise and spa facilities and fitness programmes.

FOOTBALL

Football is by far the most important sport in Spain. The football season starts in September and ends in May, and during this period hundreds of thousands of Spaniards flock to stadiums to watch Spanish football league games, with millions more watching them on television and listening to commentaries on the radio.

Spain became football world champions for the first time in the 2010 World Cup in South Africa and are also the current European champions, having won again in 2012 the title they first won in 2008.

The country also boasts some of the best football clubs in Europe, one of them being Barcelona's own Fútbol Club Barcelona, known familiarly to fans as "el Barça".

FC Barcelona holds a long-standing rivalry with Real Madrid and matches between the two teams are much-anticipated events.

Any triumph of FC Barcelona is cause for citywide celebration, complete with fireworks, honking cars and rowdy street parties.

Barcelona's other first-division club is RCD Espanyol, the sixth most successful football team in Spain. The team currently plays in the Cornellà-El Prat Stadium, which was inaugurated in 2009.

OTHER SPORTS

→ Golf

Barcelona has several good golf courses located near the city, near Sant Cugat and Castelldefels and in the countryside of the Costa Brava.

→ Skiing

The Pyrenees offer ski enthusiasts plenty of snow and blue skies many days of the year. Barcelona skiers head to ski resorts in the Spanish Pyrenees, many of which are connected to Barcelona by RENFE and FGC train links. Andorra is also a popular ski destination among locals. A two-hour drive will take you to the nearest French ski resort.

→ Sailing and water sports

The beaches of Barcelona and its surrounding areas are home to several nautical and yacht clubs offering boat rentals, sailing lessons and a variety of water sports.

The city also has a municipal sailing school.

MASS MEDIA

→ Radio

Barcelona's locals are avid radio listeners. There are a number of high-quality radio stations, most of them broadcasting on FM. Many stations broadcast in Catalan; in fact, the language has greater presence on radio than in any other medium.

→ Television

If you are planning to take your television set with you to Spain, make sure that is equipped to view PAL television signals. Local programmes are in Spanish or Catalan. Foreign shows, especially American series, are also very popular, but they are usually dubbed into Spanish or Catalan. However, some modern televisions have the capability of handling two audio channels. To see foreign shows in their original version, look for programmes marked VO (versió original) on TV listings or a dual symbol at the top of the screen and switch audio channels.

The main public TV channels are:

TVE 1 (LA PRIMERA)

State broadcaster with emphasis on news and light entertainment.

TVE 2 (LA DOS)

Another state-run channel focused on sports, live cultural broadcasts, documentaries and films.

TV3

Regional network broadcast entirely in Catalan. Features mainstream programming.

CANAL 33

Another Catalan network mainly showing documentaries and sports programmes.

BTV

The Barcelona city television channel.

Analogue television service was discontinued throughout Spain in April 2010. Since then, all national and regional terrestrial channels have been digital.

Since 2005, Digital Terrestrial Television (Televisió Digital Terrestre) has been offered as a free service with many channels and 14 radio stations, along with 23 regional and local language channels in their respective areas. Currently about between 96% and 98% of the population can receive DTT.

Subscription services for satellite television with several foreign-language channels are also available. Packages are often bundled with telephone and Internet services. Digital television offers superior picture and sound quality and widescreen cinema format.

Cinema

Like television shows, foreign films are dubbed into Spanish or Catalan, except in original-version cinemas where films are screened in their original languages with subtitles in Spanish or Catalan. These cinemas show an eclectic mix of films, from mainstream Hollywood blockbusters to European art films.

Newspapers, magazines and books

Local and international newspapers and periodicals are sold at newsstands and bookstores. You can also get subscription services and have your favourite newspapers and magazines delivered to your doorstep.

Bookstores are dominated by books and other publications in Spanish and Catalan, but many of them have well-stocked foreign language sections. There are also some stores dedicated entirely to books in English.

A good way to get acquainted with Barcelona and its history is to read a novel set in the city.

LA CATEDRAL DEL MAR (CATHEDRAL OF THE SEA)

Ildelfonso Falcones

This is an historical novel set in 14th-century Barcelona, at the height of the Inquisition and during the construction of the church of Santa Maria del Mar. It follows the son of a fugitive peasant as he defies feudal order and rises to the highest ranks of medieval society.

LA CIUDAD DE LOS PRODIGIOS (THE CITY OF MARVELS)

Eduardo Mendoza

This novel is about a man caught between ambition and love, in the years between Barcelona's Universal Expositions of 1888 and 1929.

LA SOMBRA DEL VIENTO (THE SHADOW OF THE WIND)

Carlos Ruiz Zafón

This novel, set in post-Spanish Civil War Barcelona, tells the story of a boy and his fascination with a mysterious author.

BEACHES

In 2007, Barcelona was named the top beach city in the world by National Geographic and continues to lead the ranking ahead of cities such as Nice, Cape Town, Rio and Sydney. The multitudes that flock to the city's beaches can attest to this. Beachgoers hit the sands during the daytime to relax and play and in the night time to enjoy the beachfront's buzzing nightlife. Barcelona's beaches are easily accessible from the city centre by metro and by bicycle.

SANT SEBASTIÀ

This 1,085-metre stretch of beach is the closest to the city centre. It is the oldest and most traditional beach in the city together with Barceloneta. This beach is frequented by Barcelona locals. Many important water sports clubs are based here.

MAR BELLA

This beach was developed during the preparations for the 1992 Olympic Games. It has loyal following, especially among young people and residents of the Sant Martí district. It has a bicycle path, a children's play area and other recreational facilities. It also has a designated nudist beach area.

NOVA MAR BELLA

This beach also came into existence during Barcelona's seafront restoration for the 1992 Olympics. It is a peaceful beach popular with women and young beachgoers.

LLEVANT

This is Barcelona's newest beach. It was provisionally opened to the public in the summer of 2006 and was fully equipped by 2007. It is the last of the beaches on Barcelona's coastline.

For more information, visit the Beaches page at → www.bcn.cat/parcsijardins
