On 24 October, BSC participated in the latest edition of 48h Open House Barcelona, which aims to raise awareness about the city's architectural heritage. More than 350 people visited the chapel in Torre Girona, where the MareNostrum supercomputer is located. Five BSC researchers participated in the tours for this edition: Daniel Gallart, Alfonso Santiago, Jaime Benavides, Albert Farrés and Sergio Lozano who gave presentations about the centre and the scientific work undertaken here.
